Tennyson's Latest Poem.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA IN 1782.

[Mr. Alfred Tennyson, in contributing the following stanzas to the Ledger, writes to the editor: "The poem which I send herewith is supposed to be written or spoken by a liberal Englishman at the time of our recognition of American Independence."

O Thou, that sendest out the man To rule by land and ses,

CAMDS printed in the highest style of the art

Etrong mother of a Lion-line, Be proud of those strong sons of thine Who wrench'd their rights from thee

What wonder, if in noble heat Those men thine arms withstood, Retaught the lesson thou hadst taught, And in thy spirit with thee fought-

Who sprang from English blood ! But Thou rejoice with liberal joy, Lift up thy rocky face, And shatter, when the storms are black,

In many a streaming torrent back, The seas that shock thy base ! Whatever harmonies of law The growing world assume, The work is thine-The single note

Will vibrate to the doom.

VARIETY.

From that deep chord which Hampden smote

Better.-Mrs. Partington says that "it is better to speak paragorically of a person than to be all the time flinging epitaphs at him."

A Kansas paper states the case this way: "Mr. -, of Missouri, got to owning horses that did not belong to him, and the next thing he knew he couldn't get his feet down to the ground. He strangled."

During the examination of a witness as to the locality of the stairs in a house, the counsel asked him : " Which way did the stairs run?" The witness, who, by the way, is a noted wag, replied: "One way they ran up but the other way they ran down.'

One evening in company, during conversation, a gentleman quoted the expression, that " Man proposes, and God disposes." "Yes," said a maiden present, "a man proposed to me once, I said no, and have never seen him since, so I thought somebody had disposed of him."

An honest country parson, who in the time of great drouth was desired to pray for rain, answered: "I'll willingly do it to oblige you, but it is to no purpose while the wind is in this quarter.

The editor of the Athol Transcript is affected by the weather. He says: "The devil of this office has a soul. On this account we don't care to compel him to steal wood. Will several of our subscribers take the hint?"

WILL TELL.-In Chicago, a man can thrash his mother-in-law, under a recent decision, for seventy-five dollars. Recently a young man in Rockport Mo., undertook to do it for nothing. rtery healthy woman. When he recovers s. intly he will tell how it was done.

In a poles case in New York, a youth, about ten years of ige, was placed on the stand to give his testimony. The lawyer, as usual, asked the boy if he knew the nature of an oath, and received an affirmative reply. When asked what they do to persons who swear to a lie, he replied, "They make policemen out of 'em."

INGENIOUS REVENUE .- Cowardly fellow kicked a newsboy the other day for pestering him to buy an evening paper. The lad's revenge was ingenious and complete. He waited till another boy accosted " the gent," and then shouted in the bearing of all the bystanders, "It's no use to try him, Jim, he can't read."

A little girl in New York, recently celebrated her fourth birthday by attending Sabbath School. When the recitations of the class were finished, the teacher usked her if she could repeat some little verse she learned. She promptly replied she could, and astonished the class by the following:

Mary had a little lamb, She laid it on the shelf, Everytime it wagged its tail You know how 'tis yourself.

We recommend the following New Jersey effusion to the attention of obituary verse makers : She was not smart, she was not fair, But hearts with grie; for her are swellin' All empty stands her little chair—

" Can you take off my baird here?" said a grave, tall, slab-sided Yankee to an Albany barber, feeling at the same time his chin, with a noise like a grater. " It's a light baird; what d yer tax? Three cents for a light baird, ain't

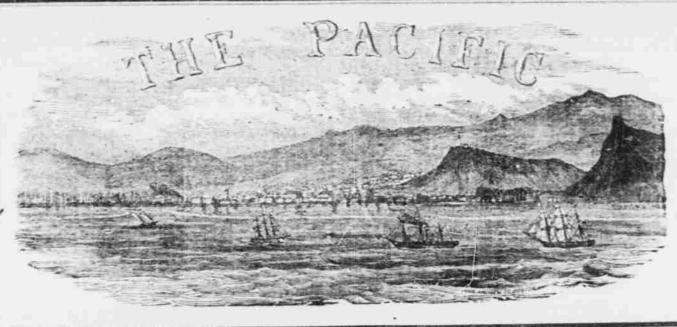

" Waal, go ahead then." While the barber was rasping three cents worth from his chin, his sister saw an assistant putting cologue upon a customer's hair through a quill in the cork of a bottle. Look a' here, squire," said the Yankee, can't you squirt some o' that peppersass into my head tew? Say, can't you throw a little o' that in for the three cents?"

A demure-looking chap hailed a charcoal peddler with the query, "Have you got charcoal in your wagon?" "Yes, sir," said the expectant driver, stopping his horses. "That's right," observed the demure-looking chap, with an approving sod; " always tell the truth and people will respect you!" And he hurried on, much to the regret of the peddler, who was getting out of the wagon to look for a brick.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN :- By request of the Chairman of the Committee, who has been very busy and is very tired, I suppose, I ask leave to introduce to you the lecturer of the evening, Mr. Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain, a gentleman whose great learning, whose historical accuracy, ion to science, and whose veneration for the truth [laughter] are only equaled by his | moral character and his majestic presence. [Renewed laughter.] I refer these vague general terms to myself. [Giggling.] I am a little opposed to the custom of ceremoniously introducing the lecturer to the andience, because it seems to me unnecessary where the man has been properly advertised [laughter.] and besides it is very uncomfortable for the lecturer. But where it is the custom, an introduction ought to be made, and I had rather make it myself in my own case, and then I can rely on getting in all the facts. [Continued laughter.] It is not a simple introduction that I mind. I don't really care for that at all; but it is the compliments that sometimes go with it-that is what hurts. It would make any one feel uncomfortable. You can fancy a young lady introduced to a parlor-full of company as the best conversationalist, the best model in every way, in her section of the country. You might just as well knock her in the head. She could not say a word the rest of the evening. I never had but one public introduction that seemed exactly the thing; that seemed to be a very inspiration in the way of an introduction. The gentleman had a good head, and said he supposed I didn't want any compliments. I said he was exactly right, I didn't want any compliments. And when he introduced me he said-" Ladies and gentlemen, I shall not waste any upnecessary time in the introduction. I don't know anything about this man ; [laughter] at least I only know two things about him; one is that he has never been in the penitentiary, and the other is I can't imagine why." [Prolonged laughter.] New such an introduction puts a man right at ease. • [Laughter.] - Mark Twain's Lecture.
